

GRAU ENGAGES MANY STARS.

Noted Operatic Impresario Returns from Europe, His Pockets Bulging with Contracts with Foreign Singers.

BRILLIANT OPERA SEASON.

The Outlook Never Before Was So Brilliant, He Says—No Lack of Tenors This Time—Other Passengers on La Lorraine.

Maurice Grau returned to America this morning on La Lorraine. With him were his wife and daughter, and his pockets bulged with the contracts of the greatest operatic stars of the stage as he talked enthusiastically of the prospect for a brilliant season.

Mr. Grau never looked better than he did this morning. He was one of the first to step from the big ocean liner, and his sprightly step told better than his words that he got what he went after.

He promptly denied that any of the great singers who will appear at the Metropolitan after Nov. 24 were on board La Lorraine. The Charles Opera Company, which plays an annual engagement in New Orleans, came over, but the Grau singers will not be here for a week or ten days, when the first will arrive.

Hasn't Considered Mascagni. About the first question propounded to Mr. Grau was relative to a rumored proposal to Mascagni.

"I don't think so," was the reply. "Have you ever considered taking up his management?" he was asked.

"I have never given it a thought."

"The best news I have for you," said Mr. Grau, "is to tell you that I secured a contract with Carlo Duni, the Italian tenor, just before I started home. He is a young man, but he will make a great impression in America. He will be seen in the Italian operas."

And, speaking of tenors, it was said that we had had none, but we have three of the best in the world—Anthes, Gerhauser and Burgstaller. Anthes will appear in the principal role in "Manru," the Paderewski opera, which role he created in the original European production.

A New Wagnerian Conductor.

"I have also engaged a new conductor of the Wagnerian school—Alfred Herts. Of course, you know all about Herts, Nordica, Melba and the rest. They are all coming, and are just as enthusiastic as ever about their American engagement. Truly, I never approached a season with so much confidence. There isn't a ripple of discontent to disturb my peace of mind."

Asked regarding the project for a French theatre in New York, Mr. Grau said:

"It is a possibility of the future. I have considered it and believe it could be made a thorough success. But the project is not far advanced. It is a mistake to say that subscriptions have been asked from wealthy New Yorkers. For it is not true. It is a project for next year, or the year after, and I will like it very much."

Ship Made Fast Trip.

La Lorraine, Atlantic in six days, thirteen hours and fifty-three minutes, one of the fastest trips in its history, and the first time a ship of French construction who ever crossed the ocean on board a steamer. In the party were Jules Boeuf, Consul to Washington; A. Jouve, Vice-Consul to New York; Henry Merou, Consul to Chicago, and A. W. Chacko, Consul for the Department of Havre.

Another passenger on the La Lorraine was Count Raoul Chanson de Brailles. He was taken for a pleasure ride last night in the yacht of a wealthy New Yorker, who took him on board as La Lorraine lay off quarantine. It was said that he came to represent the French Government at the dedication of the new Chamber of Commerce Building.

His Name Occupies Much Room.

The man who takes the prize pumpkin awarded for long names is Mr. Panikakopoulos. The name was room enough on the ship's book for his first name.

Mr. P. will make his home in America, so the purser said, and it was suggested that the first act should be to shorten his name down to something like Papani. The final "i" would leave it decidedly foreign.

JOB FOR POLICEMAN WHO CAN'T BE FOUND

Appellate Division Orders Jerry Healy's Reinstatement on the Force, but He Is Missing.

If Jerry Healy, an Oak street station policeman who was dismissed by Commissioner Partridge soon after he took office, will "find himself" and come back he may don his uniform again and resume his post as a policeman in good standing, provided he promises not to ask any back pay from the day he was dismissed to the day he sued for reinstatement.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court has decided in the policeman's favor. But Healy, who lived at No. 67 Cherry street up to two months ago, (sued by his former mates in the Oak street station and by his neighbors, who declared he would never get back his shield, has disappeared, and all the efforts of his lawyer, Hyacinthe Ringrose, to find him have been unavailing.

Healy sued for reinstatement before Justice Bischoff in Special Term of the Supreme Court. Justice Bischoff ruled that as Healy had not sued within the time limit named in the city charter—four months from the date of dismissal—he could not be reinstated. An appeal was taken to the Appellate Division, where Justices Van Buren, O'Brien, McLaughlin and Laughlin, in an opinion by the last named, reversed the order and granted the motion for reinstatement upon condition that Jeremiah J. Healy waive all claim to salary from the time he was dropped from the rolls to the date of his application for reinstatement. So Healy loses ten months' salary at $1.00 a year, but is reinstated.

ORATORIO SINGER BECOMES MARINE LIEUTENANT'S BRIDE

MRS. HOWARD HAPGOOD KIPP.

MRS. BLOODGOOD BECOMES MRS. KIPP

WENT ON STAGE WITH $30,000 A YEAR

Professional Singer Married to Young Lieutenant of Marines in California.

Brother of Mrs. Claggett-Perin-Howard Becomes an Actor for the Love of Art.

STOCKTON, Cal., Nov. 8.—New Yorkers will be interested in the marriage here of Mrs. Katherine Bloodgood, the contralto, and Howard Hapgood Kipp, second lieutenant of marines at the Coast Island training station. Both gave their residence as New York when they were married by Justice Parker.

Mrs. Kipp was Miss Katherine Spencer, a Californian by birth. She married William D. Bloodgood of New York in San Francisco on June 5, 1899. Mr. Bloodgood was the son of a wealthy broker and he took his bride to the East, where she continued her musical studies.

The marriage was not a happy one, and when Mrs. Bloodgood became a professional singer her husband secured a Dakota divorce.

Mrs. Bloodgood had enjoyed great success as a concert and oratorio singer. Recently she went into vaudeville. For time she was contralto at the Dutch Reformed Church, New York.

Lieut. Kipp, who belongs to a distinguished New York family, and is well known in navy circles, had paid marked attention to Mrs. Bloodgood during her visit here, but none of his friends were aware of his intention to marry the singer.

An interesting sequel to the troubled domestic affairs of the Washington Claggetts, culminating in the wedding of Mrs. May Claggett Perin to the son of the British Ambassador to Denmark against his family's wishes, is the fact that Mrs. May Claggett Perin-Howard's brother, William Claggett, who is in receipt of an income of $30,000 a year, has adopted the stage as his life work. He now plays the part of Reggie Keene, the owner of the "Black Assassin" automobile, in "Among Those Present."

Both of the young man's sisters have made notable matches. The one married last Wednesday in Washington was at one time engaged to Augustus Whitling, later wedded Clifford Perin, of Cincinnati, less than two years ago they were divorced, and Mr. Perin died a year ago. The engagement with George Howard, the actor of British nobility, was announced last spring. Young Claggett's other sister is the Viscountess de Sibir, now residing in New York City.

CHANGES AT THE THEATRES.

"The Romance of a Poor Young Man" will be the week's revival by the Donnelly stock company at the Murray Hill Theatre.

The funny farce, "Are You a Mason?" presented by an excellent company, will furnish amusement at the Grand Opera-House.

New faces will be seen in a production of Bartley Campbell's "The White Slave" at the Metropolitan Theatre.

"The Smart Set," a "com" show, with Billy McLean and Henry Morris Jackson as the shining lights and Gus Hill as owner, will be the attraction at the Star Theatre.

A spectacular production of the ever interesting "Faust" will be given at the American Theatre.

A London melodrama, "The Blind Girl," will be given its first American production at the Third Avenue.

"Sally in Our Alley," the Lederer musical piece, with Marie Cahill, which enjoyed a prosperous run at the Broadway, will be at the Harlem Opera-House throughout the week.

William A. Brady's production of "Foxy Grandpa," featuring Joseph Hart and Carrie De Mar, will provide entertainment at Harlem's new theatre, the West End.

THE WEEK IN VAUDEVILLE.

Keith's bill will include among its novelties the Baggesens, comedy jugglers and acrobats, just back from Europe.

Joe Welch, the clever Yiddish monologist, will head a big bill at Pastor's.

Proctor's places: William Bramwell, leading man from the Murray Hill, will begin his engagement at the Fifth Avenue in "The Last Appeal." The main feature of the vaudeville bill at the Twenty-third street house will be the Kronan troupe of Russian dancers.

"The Dantes" will be the play at the Fifty-eighth street house. "The Black Flag" will wave at the Harlem house. Kelley's Zouaves will march at the head of the bill in Newark.

John L. Sullivan, ex-champion pugilist, will make his New York debut as a monologist at Hurlit & Seamon's.

A life-like figure of Gov. Benjamin B. Odell had been added to the collection at the Eden Musee.

'LOTUS BUDS' TO BE DEPORTED.

Treasury Board Hears Evidence on Tingleism and Decides that Cuban Children Shall Not Go to California.

SECRETS OF CULT REVEALED.

Former Inmate of Point Loma in Statute Tells of Spaniel in Which W. Q. Judge Was Reincarnated and Hints at Free Love Practices

By a unanimous vote the Board of Special Inquiry, of the Treasury Department, has decided for a second time that Mrs. Katherine A. Tingley is not a fit person to have the custody of children and the eleven "Lotus Buds," who were brought from Cuba to be taken to the school of the strange cult in Point Loma, Cal., will be sent home. The second inquiry brought out many interesting points concerning the past experiences of Mrs. Tingley and the workings of the western school.

S. V. Beckwith, seeing that the sentiment of the members of the board could not be turned, made a statement arraigning the methods of Commodore Gerry and the Children's Society and left the room in anger. He accused Mr. Gerry of basing his charges against Mrs. Tingley on a newspaper article for which the publisher is now being sued. He pictured the oration given the "buds" when they left Cuba, remarking that the parents perhaps were better judges than the board of whether the school was the proper place for their children.

President Davis read a letter from Henry J. Bohn, of Chicago, telling of his brother's children who were rescued from the Tingley institution by a writ of habeas corpus. The letter stated that the children were half overcome with drugs when recovered.

Louis F. Flitch, who for nine months kept the books at the school, was the most sensational witness of the day. He said he was told by Mrs. Tingley that he was hired by "Spot," the spaniel, who is said by Mrs. Tingley to possess the soul of W. Q. Judge.

"I implied that the true state of perfection aimed at was free love, although I never heard them say so," said Mr. Flitch. "I was there nine months and was admitted to the inner circle. In all that time Mrs. Tingley made efforts to separate me from my wife, saying she was a drawback to me."

Flitch described the weird services which he says are practiced at the school and in which he claims to have participated. Most of the men and women there, he says, wear flowing robes. Mrs. Tingley dressing in purple, which gives her the name of the "Purple Mother." He says he left the place because he found it was Mrs. Tingley's aim to be known as the successor of Saviour and to go down in history as a perfect prophet.

A letter was also read from R. H. Cook, Mrs. Tingley's first husband. He said she had been the sweetheart of his childhood, but that he had met and married her in Savannah, Ga., after she was expelled from a convent.

The Lotus Buds are clothed in thin garments that are worn in Cuba, and will be widely distributed by the Children's Society. It is expected that they will be sent back to Cuba on Friday. The Secretary of the Treasury is the only person to whom the friends of Mrs. Tingley can appeal.

MUSICAL KAFFIRS RAG-TIME ARTISTS

Mrs. Lillian Bond, Broadway "Show-Girl," in New Character Sketch.

With the assistance of Lionel Lawton, stage manager, Lillian Bond, a well-known "show girl" in recent Broadway productions, appeared as a vaudeville star last evening at an entertainment given by the United Dressed Beef Company's Mutual Aid Society in the Lexington Avenue Opera-House. Her sketch was named "Echoes from Kaffir Land."

Mrs. Bond has a most imposing stage presence, but her vocal efforts were disappointing. There was not much music in her "Kaffirs," who proved to be eight rag-time residents of the lower west side.

"Under the Bamboo Tree," made familiar by Marie Cahill in "Sally in Our Alley," was the principal musical number, while cake-walking by the colored contingent in Zulu make-up constituted the rest of the "kaffir."

LATIMER CRANK CRAZY?

He Is Held for Grand Jury, but May Go to Asylum.

William G. Johnson, who says he killed Albert C. Latimer, of Brooklyn, will go to an insane asylum or else be tried for murder. This was decided yesterday after he had been arraigned in Gates avenue court, Brooklyn, and had told again his story of how the murder was committed. He told a rambling story, in which there were many contradictions of former statements.

When he had ended Magistrate Furlong said:

"Are you a lunatic, a murderer or a liar?"

"I don't know," was the reply. Then he was taken away and Assistant-District Attorney Elder announced that he would be held for the Grand Jury.

STRICKEN IN A THEATRE.

Ensign Wright, of the Navy, is Attacked by Heart Failure.

Ensign William Wright, of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, whose home is in Matinees, Tenn., was stricken with heart trouble in the lobby of a Broadway theatre and was unconscious for several minutes.

An ambulance was summoned from Roosevelt Hospital and Dr. Whitbeck resuscitated the ensign by artificial respiration. He refused to go to the hospital and was taken away in a cab by friends.

PARIS PUBLISHER HERE FOR "TIPS."

Comes to This Country to Study Methods of the Great Newspapers in New York.

SEEKS CHEAP WHITE PAPER.

In France the Price Is Exorbitant, and He Will Try to Arrange for Shipment of Pulp—Circulations Bigger Abroad.

Paul Dupuy, a director in the corporation that owns the Petit-Parisien, a Paris newspaper with a circulation of 1,200,000 a day, was one of the arrivals on the French liner La Lorraine from France to-day. Mr. Dupuy comes to New York to study American newspaper methods and incidentally to seek to arrange for cheaper printing paper.

"It is my first visit to the United States," he said to an Evening World reporter. "While we have larger circulations in France than your great newspapers have we appear to be behind your publishers in many important respects. I shall remain in New York one month, spending most of my time in the great newspaper offices. Then I shall go to Canada to arrange, if possible, for the shipment of pulp to France for the manufacture of paper."

"We are compelled to pay exorbitant prices for our white paper. The duty on pulp is low, and if possible we shall establish a plant for the manufacture of our own paper."

"Your newspapers here differ from ours to the widest degree. For instance, my newspaper prints only six pages of reading matter and one of advertising. Every day we print a continued story—the feuilleton feature. It is called. We find it to be the most popular part of our newspapers."

Recently upon announcing that we would begin the publication of a new novel by Jules Marie we found that our circulation increased 30,000 a day in the city of Paris and 100,000 in all of France."

M. Dupuy has made no plans to guide his movements. He will simply roam around and get acquainted.

NEW YORKERS HAVE "NO TIME TO DIE."

Clergyman Endeavoring to Raise $50,000 for Lepers in Dutch Guiana Is Discouraged.

A couple dressed in black went up the steps of the sea house, No. 23 Lafayette place, and rang the bell. An attendant answered the ring.

"We would like to see Bishop Potter," said the man.

They were told they could not see the Bishop without making an appointment by letter.

They were the Rev. Henry T. Weiss and his wife, who are stopping at No. 25 West Twenty-third street.

"They have come to New York from Dutch Guiana to raise $50,000 for their work among the lepers and not a penny has been subscribed yet."

Mrs. Weiss, wife of the pastor, said: "We thought to see the gentlemen at their homes, but there are the servants. We cannot get by them. And at the others they are too busy."

"I've" out in the city," Mr. Weiss, "they haven't even time to die."

This clergyman and his wife are spending their life among the lepers in Surinam. They have a colony where lepers come of their own accord because Mr. Weiss believes he can cure them. He and his wife, as well as their two nurses, are yet untouched by the dread disease.

INTERESTING FEATURES

On Marriage, by Mary MacLane.

Marriage is a difficult problem, but some people are not afraid to tackle it—especially those unmarried. There is no subject too subtle for that remarkable young woman, Mary MacLane. In her famous book she handled "Marriage" in a particularly radical way. Since then she has grown older, and her views have changed. Nevertheless, her present article is as clever as the first. It has especial pertinence because of the recent unconventional marriage of her sister.

The Wonders of New York.

No. 3 in the series of articles on the Wonders of New York, the Wonder City of the World. This time it is the magnificent Zoo in Bronx Park. Comparatively few New Yorkers realize what a colossal affair this is and how worthy their attention. If the Sunday World's great double-page article, finely illustrated, will have the effect it should, the beauties of the Zoo will soon be familiar to all its readers.

Here's the Hunting Set.

Small chance for Reynard if New York's fox-hunting set ever gets after him. The smart cross-country riders of the Meadow Brook and other clubs are not anise-seed chasers, but genuine pursuers of the fox, and the packs of hounds they support know Brother Bushy-tail from a scented drag. It is really an interesting set, this lot of brilliantly clad ladies and gentlemen, and you will be pleased to learn all about them—how much they spend, how the hunting is, &c.

A Slave of New York.

Yes, a slave in every sense of the word! A woman, intelligent, refined, ambitious, poetic, and in perfect health, who has lived in New York for thirty-five years and never knew until last week a single thing of the city above Twenty-third street; had never ridden on the "L" or touched a rose or seen a stylish dress. And the Sunday World rescued her from bondage and lets you know how it seemed to the woman.

Christian Science--What?

An opportunity afforded the leading disciples of Christian Science by the Sunday World to set the public right on the subject. An argument by the Rev. Irving C. Tomlinson, Mrs. Baker-Eddy's chief apostle, and Alfred Farlow, head of her publication bureau. Their astounding claims and how they feel confident in making them.

The Home Department.

"What Shall We Tell Our Children?" by Mrs. Almon Hensley, President of the Society for the Study of Life and Secretary of the New York State Assembly of Mothers. A most instructive article. Harriet Hubbard Ayer's unequalled Home Page, with its sterling advice to women of all ages.

$50 in Puzzle Prizes.

No. 2 in the series of Puzzle Lessons, with cash prizes of fifty dollars. An instructive pastime, well worth the while of any one with a faculty for solving puzzles. Also the "Funny Side," four pages of unalloyed, clean humor in pictures in color, for old and young.
